

ABSTRACT OF THE DISCLOSURE

A print system can be employed by a client without setting up, for each client, a print function for converting distributed data into a print format and without providing a server with individual printers. Print data generated by the server is directly transmitted from the server to a print server.